ABOUT THE MANHOLE

the Manhole, originally released in 1988, was the first CD-ROM software title created for children. This new and enhanced version was developed to create an even more colorful fantasy world with lots more sound and speech.

While the Manhole was written with children in mind, this game is enjoyable for everyone to play. The vast fantasy world of discovery is uncovered by clicking on different objects and characters. Even the smallest of objects or parts of an object can unlock an entire realm for your imagination.

PLAYING THE MANHOLE

To ensure the best performances from the Manhole, the player select switch on the VIS hand controller should be in the 'S' position.

- 1. Turn on your VIS system.*
- 2. Place the Manhole CD-ROM in the CD tray of your VIS system with the disc label facing up. Close the tray.*
- 3. the Manhole will appear on your screen automatically. Allow a few seconds for this to happen.*

- 4. Use the direction pad to move the cursor.*
- 5. Use buttons 1, 2, 4, A or B to click or select an activity, button 3 exits to the main screen.*

Once the Manhole has started, you may click on any part of a picture to continue on. Click on characters to speak with them, objects to see what they do, locations to move around, the edges of the screen to look in a new direction.

To quit the Manhole or change settings, press button #3, the tool bar button at any time. The Rabbit will guide you through this menu. From this menu you can turn the sounds on or off by selecting the record player, turn the music on or off by selecting the large note, or exit the Manhole by selecting the exit door. When you want to return to the Manhole from this menu, click on the manhole cover on the left.

the Manhole can also be played in Japanese. Simply bring up the Rabbit's menu and click on the ABC in the lower right. This will change all written text to Japanese. Click on it again to switch back to English. If you select the flag in the upper right, this will change the audio speeches to Japanese. Try listening to the speeches in Japanese while reading them in English!

TIPS FOR KIDS

the Manhole isn't a game you try to win. It's an adventure in a make-believe world full of funny things to see and do, interesting places to go, and animals who even talk and sing.

Click on anything you see! Almost every object on the screen can move or make a sound or both! Some even take you to a new place! Click on them another time and they might say or do even more stuff. Try clicking on a different part of an object...you might see it in a whole new way!

Sometimes when an object has a sound or special movement, you'll click on it and nothing will happen for a few seconds. Be patient! Your VIS will need a few seconds to get ready for the next part of the game. When everything is ready, the Manhole will continue.

In some parts of the Manhole, you can click on the edges of the screen. This will let you turn right or left, go up or down, or even turn around...try them all!

When you think you've seen everything there is to see and done everything to do, play the Manhole again...maybe you missed a little object that opens up a new big world for you to explore.

TIPS FOR PARENTS

the Manhole presents an opportunity for interaction between your children and the characters and objects in the game. It can also present a chance for interaction between you and your children.

Try to act as a guide and not a teacher. After starting the Manhole, sit with your children and go over the Tips for Kids section of this manual. Then, let them explore unassisted and at their own pace. They may see new dimensions and features of the Manhole each time they play while you share in their excitement and pride of discovery.

the Manhole is so user-friendly that even the youngest children can play. The simple point and click control makes it simple to move around the program.

To make playing with the Manhole a learning experience as well as a fun time, you may want to ask your children questions about what they think may happen next, which objects they've clicked on and what happened, who their favorite characters are, which part of the program they'd like to return to, and how they can get there.

You could have your children follow up their exploration of the Manhole with activities such as writing stories about the characters or writing letters to them. If your children don't write yet, they could draw pictures and have you write down a short story or description for you to write at the bottom of the picture.
