Getting Started

The first thing you should do is make at least one backup copy of your World Builder™ disk. It is not copy-protected, so just use normal Macintosh procedures. Use the copy as your working disk and put the original away in a safe place. The next thing is to try playing the Demo World game that is on the disk. Refer to page 5 of the manual for instructions.

Our Request

First, thanks for buying our software. Now we ask that you think about this: World Builder™ is copyrighted. We've put a lot of time, effort and money into bringing it to the marketplace. Please don't copy it for someone else.

It would be easy to do this, because we have not put any copy-protection on the World Builder™ disk. You have paid for World Builder,™ so we feel that it is necessary for you to be able to easily make backups or put it on a hard disk! We have decided that taking care of the paying customer is more important than trying to stop illegal duplication through copy-protection.

We are aware that most people want to get their software with no copy-protection. We are listening. We have done our part, now it is your turn. We are confident that Macintosh owners are honest people. Help us dispel the myth that copy-protection is a necessary evil! We are putting our trust in you. Thanks everyone.
