GETTING STARTED:

You need to first install the interface program that will allow you to browse, install and run the games on this CD-ROM. From the DOS prompt (C:\>) switch to your CD-ROM drive by typing in its letter followed by a colon. For example, if your CD-ROM drive is labeled "E" then type:

```
E:
INSTALL
```

You will asked whether you have a VGA or an SVGA monitor. The SVGA option also supports sound if you have a sound card.

Now that the interface program has been installed onto your hard drive, (assuming that you have installed the interface on your hard drive C:) you can run it by typing:

```
C:
CD GH1
GH
```

TIPS AND CAVEATS

The interface and many games on this CD-ROM were designed to run under a DOS environment. It is possible that some games will not run with certain hardware and software configurations.

Many of these games may have minimum memory requirements. For optimum results, do not run the interface or any of the DOS games while Windows is running.

For Users of MSDOS 6.0 and above, you may also wish to configure your memory using DOS MEMMAKER.EXE program. Please refer to your DOS manual for details on MEMMAKER's use.

In order to be able to use your mouse with the Game Head interface and with many of the games included on the CD, you must first have your DOS mouse driver loaded. Please refer to the instructions that came with your mouse for details on how to do this.

READ ME AND RUN

Trugg v1.0

Your goal in this intelligent puzzle game with cool 3D graphics and sounds is to lead Trugg, a cute little robot that kind of looks like a space age vacuum cleaner through 20 levels gathering treasure and watching out for boulders, guns, forcefields and guards. You must rearrange obstacles rocks bombs etc., to free up a path for you to get all the goodies and then a door to the next level opens. You have to be quick to avoid falling rocks and bombs and plan your movement carefully or you will seal yourself off. In some instances you have to use the bombs creatively to blast your way through to the treasure. Addictive and challenging...
